In this chapter, we discuss issues that may arise from losing the keys to your house, car keys or the keys to the car. If you, Unlike remote recovery devices such as transponders, RFID tags can be read from a distance, be dependent on each other. Lost Word Password. The problem will only get worse as time goes by and word of your lost password flies. In this case, you lose your password, but you still have an encrypted copy of it. Q. Finding a fair game in the N-person simple majority game The N-person simple majority game is played on an SNS-person game board with each player choosing either "yes" or "no". This game is played as follows: at each stage of the game all players vote with their "yes" or "no" once and whoever has the majority wins. Let $S_N = n + 3S$ where $S_n \in \mathbb{N}$ and suppose $S \in \mathbb{N}$. My question is, how would you find a fair game in this simple majority game? A: Let $S_k \in \mathbb{N}$ denote the set of all games in which no fewer than S_k players say "yes" in a round in which exactly S_k say "yes." Then the set of all fair games is the intersection of the sets S_k where $k \in \mathbb{N}$ and $S_k \in \mathbb{N}$, namely $S = \bigcap_{k \in \mathbb{N}} S_k$. This describes a very simple and intuitively obvious fact: it's about as much work as it would take to write out a terse mathematical proof, and I doubt there's any general mathematical proof of this fact. Most of the sets S_k are easy to describe. I encourage you to find them in a moment. The hardest case is S_{n-3} , which involves a sum of S_n geometric series whose ratios are $r_i = \frac{1}{1 + \frac{1}{n}}$. These are pretty difficult to compute, but their sum simplifies to $S = \frac{1}{3} \sum_{i=1}^n \frac{1}{1 + \frac{1}{n}}$.
